

Local Credit Union's Collaborate for Two Great Local Initiatives

June 20, 2016 - For Immediate Release

NELSON, B.C. —Nelson & District Credit Union (NDCU) and Kootenay Savings Credit Union (KSCU) recently collaborated to support the Kootenay & Boundary Regional Food Producers Co-op and the Nelson & Area Elder Abuse Prevention Program.

Next to Tom (right) is Yvonne Shewfelt, chair of the Nelson & Area Elder Abuse Prevention (EAPP) program. The EAPP is coordinating an initiative to train volunteers to support seniors and families in preparing advanced planning documentation.

Without the support of their credit union's members, financial support for community-driven initiatives such as these would not be possible.
